

Shanghai Journal

2-10-15

Vegetarian Lifestyle
W. Nanjing Road
Shanghai

Our favorite restaurant!

Hot and Sour Soup

Left- a special mushroom with basil - the most expensive dish we had; mushroom is rare because hard to pick – a farmer can only pick 5 in a day!

(Actually, not as tasty to me as tree mushrooms)

This is an experiment with a template to see if it is easier to insert photos. Drool as you look at the tasty dishes we had on Sunday at our favorite restaurant. So yummy! Great to go with a group so we could taste more dishes – Lee and the math guys!

Have been working hard on book since we have editor meetings over the next two weeks to review chapters.

We are planning a 4-day trip to Beijing the week after next; taking bullet train!

Pot stickers, tree mushrooms behind

Tonight is our first class in Mandarin. Classes will meet two nights a week. Hope I can learn to say at least a few phrases.

Lee and Yuning

Not sure I will use this format again – takes too long with formatting. Alison is trying to convince me to do a blog. I may experiment with that.

Hope all of you are doing well and surviving winter!

Love, Lee and Ravi

Thierry, Ravi and Larry